“Special Topics” Learning Community for Fall 2014

University Orientation (UNIV 100) & Writing for College Success (UNIV 150)

Registration capped at 20 for both sections

WHO – Students taking University Orientation (UNIV 100) and Writing for College Success (UNIV 150). Seats are limited!

WHAT – In completion of the linking unit between courses, this learning community will read, study, discuss, and write about Into the Wild, a “national bestseller” by Jon Krakauer. A young man lets go of his privileged station in life to journey into the “wild” of Alaska.

WHEN -

- University Orientation (UNIV 100),
  MW, 1:00 – 1:50 pm, August 23 through October 16

- Writing for College Success (UNIV 150),
  MWF, 9:00 – 9:50 am, entire semester

WHERE – Education Building – 208 – ED 0208

WHY – This learning community (linked classes) helps students to draw parallels between their current transition to college and the experiences of Christopher Johnson McCandless through classroom discussion and extensive writing practice. Discussions will necessarily transcend the single classroom setting since the same students are enrolled in both classes. Students will also have the unique opportunity to gain perspective on the work from faculty of different disciplines.

ATTENTION STUDENTS – The sections comprising this learning community are hidden from view in the schedule of classes. Please see your academic advisor for registration details. There are only 20 seats available, so do not delay. If this opportunity is of interest to you, contact your advisor immediately.

ATTENTION ADVISORS – The classes comprising this learning community do not appear on the schedule, as they are hidden due to the link. Below please find the necessary registration information for students. Since these sections are hidden from view, please make your qualifying students aware of the opportunity.
