UNIV 100 – University Orientation

This course offers guidance and support as you transition into the university environment. You will better understand the learning process within a university setting and the role you must play in order to meet with success. By being active and involved, you will acquire academic skills essential to the learning process.

Topics include: Academic policies and campus resources, major exploration and career management, time management, learning styles, advising and faculty partnerships, goal setting and academic planning using Degree Works, and strategic registration planning.

UNIV 195

This course is taught in a small classroom setting allowing you to interact with your faculty member. Instructors are passionate about these topics and want you to succeed.

Sections Available:

- Natural Disasters
  - CRN: 16005
- Leadership
  - CRN: 13319